ARCHIVIST'S NOTES

This electronic file of the 1955 NHS yearbook, "The Voyager," is reproduced from Erinnerungen, published by the seniors of 1955 in the American Dependents Schools in Germany and France. This was the seventh year the yearbooks from all the high schools were combined into one volume.

Those people desiring a complete electronic file of the 1955 Erinnerungen may contact NAA founder T. D. Jorgensen through the Association website.

Because almost all text in this file has been reproduced through Optical Character Recognition, the viewer may search the document using the "Find" function of the PDF. Click on the binoculars icon.

To you who are about to peruse these pages:

Bound by the unique experience of attending high school in Europe, twelve separate staffs have prepared this yearbook. Mirrored in each section are the scenes and background which give each locale its particular charm. Here in one book we offer the reader a glimpse of our European school days.

From the original 317 pages which represented seven schools in 1949, our yearbook has grown into the 600 page volume you are now reading. Each school in Germany and France has its own story to tell. Our setting makes Erinnerungen entirely different from the usual annual, for each staff emphasizes its own background with a theme which brings out a distinctive feature of its environment. Yet every one contributes to the story of American youth living and learning in a foreign country.

Many persons unfamiliar with the school situation overseas must question our having one annual rather than twelve separate ones. But you see, students often shift from place to place during their four year period. No matter how many times the student moves within the command, he still has a record of his many scattered friends. Thus, Erinnerungen is both a meeting place and a memory book. May you who are about to turn its pages enjoy the renewal of old associations and the recollection of cherished activities.

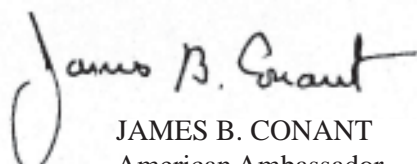

Members of the Graduating Class:

Graduation from the American schools in Germany will in your case mean something more than graduation from high school at home would mean. As you have often been reminded, you have been looked on here as representative young people from the United States; and foreign opinion of American youth has been partly based on observation of your behavior. At home you will be less conspicuous; but you will find yourselves representing there the school generation of those who have come up through an American public school system on foreign soil. See that you do not let them down.

Your experience in Germany should have contributed materially to your education. Your education is the total of what you learn, and your ability to understand and profit from it. It is to be hoped that you have learned here, among other things, to appreciate the importance of understanding people despite language differences. The will to understand is half the battle, good will the other half. Language is merely an aid, though an important one.

As a result of overseas experience you will be “different” when you go home. Will “different” mean more interesting, and able to contribute more to the common fund of experience of the new groups in which you find yourselves? Or only different? The answers are for you to find.

Your curriculum has been planned with a view to enabling you to pick up the step at home with a minimum of inconvenience. Perhaps you can not only “pick it up” but quicken it. You will have something to take back with you from a relatively small American community overseas to some comparable unit of the great friendly community of Americans at home. Try to take it back — and transmit it.

JAMES B. CONANT
American Ambassador

To the 1955 High School Graduates:

In the military service when a mission is assigned, it is expected that it will be accomplished. If it is well done, that is also generally taken for granted. When it is well done in the face of extremely difficult circumstances or in a manner which can be cited as representative of the highest traditions of the service, a commendation is frequently in order.

You who are this year being graduated from the high schools of the United States Army, Europe, are completing missions of long standing. The quality of your work has met the required standards and in many cases has been superior. For all, the circumstances have been difficult in comparison with those of your friends at home who have not had to make the adjustment to new schools, unfamiliar languages, and foreign customs.

You are to be congratulated, not only upon the successful completion of the school program but also upon the good fortune which has placed these additional difficulties in your paths and given you the capacity to overcome them. Through such experiences, you have earned the right to confidence in your ability to meet a variety of challenging situations and you have acquired a background for international understanding. These accomplishments give good promise for those roles of leadership of the less fortunate which are the responsibility of educated men and women in a democracy.

I wish you the best of success.

Classifications are indicated by sr for senior, jr for junior, soph for sophomore, fr for freshman. A question mark after a name indicates unknown grade level. Subjects taught by teachers are in italics. Transfers in and out are marked where known. Those personnel with [tr in], [tr out], or [Tr] after their name are mentioned in at least one issue of the "Trichter" or in another document in this archive, but do not appear in the yearbook. DNG after names of seniors means they transferred out and did not graduate with their class.

Die Geschichte der Schule SCHOOL HISTORY

Nurnberg American High School came into existence in 1947 in a building which had originally been a German girls' school. Five years later a new modern school was erected in the Kalb Community in Fürth. This year, with six buildings and still more being added, Nurnberg High School has taken on the appearance of a Stateside campus. Our latest addition is the new gymnasium of which we are very proud.

With the beautiful old walled city of Nürnberg in the distance we are constantly brought in contact with the culture of the old world. Surrounded by the customs and traditions of another land we have gained a broader understanding of peoples beyond our native shores. Our knowledge of Germany has been extended by the well planned all-school educational tours taken monthly. We have visited such historical points of interest as Rothenburg, and Bamberg; and have acquainted ourselves with industrial centers as Stein and Neu Stadt. The never-ending flow of students through Nurnberg High School will continue to draw closer the relationship of the youth of America and Europe.

Unlike most Stateside high school students, many students in USAREUR find it necessary to live away from home. Our home away from home is the dormitory. Our foster parents in this home are our counselors — Miss Russell and Miss Dolan for the girls and Mr. Groenheim and Mr. Jones for the boys. The boys and the girls have each organized a council. The girls chose Mary Keach for their president while the boys chose Kent Harrison. With the help of their officers and fellow dorm mates, Mary and Kent have kept the dormitory program operating smoothly all year.

Among the many social activities have been the going away parties which are held when a member is transferred from our school. The birthday parties have been fun too and those birthday cakes that our mess sergeant has made are so delicious. The Halloween party is one of the most successful events of the year. The girls have had a mascot in the form of a friendly mouse who wonders why the girls aren't as friendly as he is. He has been captured several times by one of our brave girls only to escape again.

Now as the school year rolls to an end, the dormitory once again is being closed and prepared for the onslaught of students coming to Nurnberg High School for the 1955-56 school year.

Die Klassengeschichte

CLASS HISTORY

Walking through the great glass doors of Nurnberg on that first Tuesday in September, 1954, we were suddenly faced with the realization that we were now seniors

We struggled through English, American government, physics and other subjects just like any other Senior Class. But unlike our graduating friends in the States, some of us met for the first time this year. Although we numbered only twenty-four, we hailed from all four corners of the United States and even some from foreign lands.

The boundless enthusiasm and wholehearted support of our class added greatly to the success of the 1954-55 school year. All year we eagerly anticipated our senior class trip. The faculty accepted our challenge for basketball and volleyball games. The proceeds were used for our trip. Everyone enjoyed our dramatic efforts in the class play.

This money also swelled our class fund for the trip.

Soon we were measured for our caps and gowns and addressed our announcements. We realized more than ever that the time was getting short. The night of Baccalaureate was most inspiring and left us feeling sad, excited, and unsure of what the future held for us. As we crossed the stage at Commencement exercises, we suddenly realized that this was the end of our high school days and now we were part of the adult world. With diplomas clutched in our hands we sang the school song, as we had sung it many times before, but this time tears were in our eyes.

We, the graduating class of Nurnberg American High School, wish to thank all those who have stood by us in our trials and tribulations. Also all those who have made it possible for us to be respected citizens of a free world.

The Junior-Senior Prom was one of the many social successes scored by the Junior Class this year. Money raising projects were held all year in order to raise funds for this gala affair. Junior slaves bound in chains were costly items for their class and school mates. Also contributing to the prom fund were the tempting cake sales. A bingo booth at the school carnival swelled our funds. The main attraction of the spring dance was a small portable radio given by the Junior Class as a door prize. Proud Nurnberg students sported attractive school pins which were sold as a class project.

Healthy, husky Juniors turned out enthusiastically for basketball, baseball, track and football..

The Junior Class can be proud of its contributions to the academic and social life of the Nurnberg School. Next year as seniors, we will strive to maintain and improve the standards we have established.

SOPHOMORE CLASS HISTORY

Thirty-nine sophomores reported to the Nurnberg American School on September 8 for the 1954-55 school year. Since many of us were returnees, it did not take long to become acquainted. By the third week of school, we had organized our homerooms and had elected officers for each.

The Sophomore Class boasted of enthusiastic school spirit since they had three members in the cheerleading squad and many boys in every sport. The "Sweetheart Shuffle," held in February, was one of the many successful class projects.

Under the able guidance of Miss Loennig and Mr. Smith, we completed this, our sophomore year. Now, through the knowledge and experience we acquired, we are ready to face the responsibilities of upperclassmen.

The Student Council is an essential spoke in the wheel which helps a school to operate successfully. Our Student Council fulfilled its place in the wheel by inaugurating a program which included many new and worthwhile activities

Among those were the all day educational tours for all students and teachers, the sale of activity tickets, career day, and a book fair.

“Hurry that story” are familiar words to the staff of the Trichter as the deadline nears. The unusual name of our newspaper comes from the German tradition that knowledge can be poured into students’ heads. This act is accomplished by the use of a funnel or “Trichter.” Each month the staff prints an interesting and newsy paper, and Mr. Rosin does not have to use a Trichter on any of the staff members.

Das Jahrbuch YEARBOOK

Seeing the annual in print made all the rush and flurry just before deadline worthwhile to these literary-minded people. The results of weeks of planning, writing, and picture taking blended smoothly to make the Nurnberg section of the annual one of which we hope to be proud.

The German boys and girls have commented often about the good times they had at the activities sponsored by this club. Miss Bub, Mr. Walter, and the members of the club have done a fine job showing the German youth the type of social life we carry on as well as our school activities.

The cafeteria rocked with cheers as many German students got their first taste of school spirit — American style — when they were entertained by a floor show featuring singing, dancing, and cheering led by the cheerleaders. This German-American “Dance Over the Sea” was only one of the many projects sponsored by the German-American Club, aimed at cementing the relationships of the youth of the two countries.

Der Sport

SPORTS

Nurnberg's athletic program is comparable to any Stateside school having a higher enrollment. Four major and three minor sports are included in the sporting program — football, basketball, baseball, track, golf, tennis, and cross-country. Our football games are played in the fall before cheering crowds at Soldier's Field where Adolf Hitler reviewed his goose-stepping troops and gave his dictatorial speeches to the German people. Following the gridiron season, the Nurnberg Cagers move to the hardwoods for the hoop season. The season is climaxed by USAREUR High School Basketball Tournament, which is the biggest sporting event of the year. Upon the arrival of spring, the Nurnberg Eagles move from the courts to the baseball diamonds. This year they have high hopes of repeating last year's fine performance. As the school year draws near an end, the cinders are kept warm by many athletes who are trying to break records. All through the year, the cheerleaders lend their support to the various teams and at the same time they take the initiative in promoting a wholesome school spirit.

Nurnberg High School was mighty proud of our Eagles when they captured the 1954 Southern Division Championship. Their whole season's record was excellent, dropping only one game, the last of the season, to Linz.

Coach Joe Blackstead molded a nucleus of returning Lettermen and hopeful first year men into a team whose scrappy, hard fighting play and great sportsmanship characterized their gridiron battles. The Nurnberg Eagles met Munich in their first game and came out on top by setting the Mustangs back 25-13. Kaiserslautern beat the Eagles 25-0 and in the Wiesbaden skirmish the Warriors defeated an over-confident Nurnberg eleven, 19-0. After losing to Heidelberg, 26-7, Nurnberg routed Frankfurt 25-13, and on Thanksgiving Day, beat Stuttgart 13-6. The end of a successful USAREUR gridiron season resulted in Nurnberg being tied for third place.

1955 ANNUAL CONFERENCE

Those of us who worked on the 1955 Erunnerungen will long remember Monday, February 7, 1955, for on that date our representatives turned in the final annual copy as they sat around the discussion table at the seventh USAREUR Annual Conference in the Frankfurt High School Library.

Representatives to the annual conference were:

AMERICAN SCHOOLS IN FRANCE AND GERMANY

Nürnberg American High School

ESTABLISHMENT AND GROWTH

The Army's dependents school program was formally established on 4 May 1946 in Frankfurt, Germany. On 14 October 1946, 38 elementary schools and 5 high schools opened their doors to 2,800 American dependent children. Kindergartens were available in five communities in Germany. During the school year 1950-51 four American schools were established in French communities where American military personnel were stationed.

Over the years the Army's dependents school system in France and Germany increased to the point where, today, it is the largest government-sponsored overseas school system in the history of American education. Within the USAREUR Command there are 53 kindergartens, 93 elementary schools, and 12 high schools that meet the educational needs of 30,000 eligible dependents of American personnel. These schools are staffed by 1700 American, French, and German educators and administrative personnel. Six high school dormitories are available to American students whose parents are stationed anywhere from Kassel, Germany to Captieux, France and from Warsaw, Poland to Wildflecken, Germany.

SCHOOL STANDARDS

Initially the mission of the dependents schools was twofold: to organize and maintain American schools on both the elementary and secondary levels in military communities in Germany and to provide German educators with a model American school system in action from which they might draw inspiration for the reorganization and democratization of the German educational program.

Today, the mission of the dependents school program is primarily to provide American dependents abroad with an education comparable to that afforded by the better American public school systems in the United States. Standard curricula and sound American educational philosophy have been incorporated throughout the school system.

Each school is supplied with basic textbooks along with an abundance of well-chosen supplementary texts, library books, workbooks, and audiovisual aids. A headquarters staff librarian works in close cooperation with all schools, assisting personnel in the efficient operation of school libraries.

A comparatively unique feature in American educational practices is found in the American elementary schools in France and Germany. In addition to their regular curricula the French and German languages are taught by indigenous instructors to children of all grades. The social studies in all school curricula include on-the-spot visits to many European points of geographic, historic, cultural, and artistic interest.

HIGH SCHOOLS

American high schools in Europe are afforded accreditation by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, the largest organization of its type in the United States. The curricula of all American high schools in France and Germany prepare students for entrance to most colleges and universities in the United States. Students maintaining satisfactory grades in USAREUR high schools may transfer without loss of credit to almost any American high school and may apply to almost any institution of higher learning in the United States.

French and German are offered as regular elective high school subjects and all foreign language instruction is given by qualified, native language instructors. A basic high school curriculum is offered all students which includes music, art, crafts, athletics, industrial arts, homemaking, and commercial subjects. An attempt is made to take full advantage of the cultural and geographic environment of each school, so that students may derive full benefit from an American education in a foreign land.

SCHOOL FACILITIES

Over the years outstanding progress has been made in the construction of modern school plants and facilities in France and Germany. While in 1946 virtually 100 percent of the schools were housed in requisitioned buildings, temporary buildings, and even in private homes, today, over 90 percent of the schools are in new modern school buildings specifically constructed for school purposes. These school plants are built to conform with safety specifications as set forth by U. S. Army Engineers and are comparable with the better public schools in the United States.

Health and safety precautions are maintained at all times in all schools. All students are required to have a physical examination at the beginning of each school year and prior to entering an American school. Medical officers assist in the administration of physical examinations. While school nurses are assigned to large schools, a local nurse is on call at all times at smaller schools.

OTHER FACILITIES

Six of the twelve American high schools maintain dormitory facilities for approximately 500 students whose homes are not within commuting distance of a high school.

Dormitory rates averaging about one dollar per day include room, linen, and lunch facilities.

Many local installations provide hot noon lunches for school children which are prepared under the supervision of qualified dieticians. The charge for these meals is kept at a minimum.

Playground and athletic facilities are provided at most schools, and play periods are under the careful supervision of faculty members. Playground equipment includes swings, slides, high bars, see-saws, as well as basketball, and volleyball courts.

Football, basketball, baseball, and soccer are included in the sports curricula of many of the large elementary schools and all of the high schools. A colorful basketball tournament and inter-school football have become regular extracurricular activities. Indeed, the popularity of high school football has grown to the point where each team represents not only the school but the city and the military area in which the school is located.

PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATIONS

In most school communities the PTA is an important factor in the operation of a successful school. A European Command Congress of American Parents and Teachers was organized in 1951, and most PTA groups in France and Germany are now members of this organization, while several local PTA groups have become members of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, the national PTA organization in the United States.
