Program for a Don Campbell Mozart Effect Presentation

For two decades, Don Campbell has researched the effects of sound and music on learning and health. He has authored eight books, including The Mozart Effect®, and since 1973 has served as a music journalist for numerous magazines and newspapers.

Mr. Campbell is internationally known for his creative, innovative and informational lectures and classes. He directs study programs on the therapeutic and transformational uses of self-generated health through voice, music and imagery, helping put The Mozart Effect® to work in businesses, corporations and classrooms.

He has traveled to forty countries teaching musicians, teachers, physicians, therapists and business trainers.

Don Campbell, a native of Texas, was educated in France with Nadia Boulanger and Jean Casadesus and continued his studies of organ, music, and conducting at the University of North Texas. His appointments have included St Mary's International School in Tokyo teaching music and philosophy, and Director of Education for the Chorister's Guild.

This paper needs a name!

Win a prize — a full week's supply of all-day suckers (all day after school, that is) and one tube of Crest, the only toothpaste with fluoristan (to clean out the cavities after each day's delight.)

The Student's Prayer

Now I sit me down to study,
I pray to God I don't go nutty.
If I should fail to learn this junk,
I pray to God I do not flunk
If I should die, no pity at all,
Just stretch me out in study hall.
And lay my books upon my desk,
And tell my friends I did my best.

Washington and History

From the beginning of time immortal, man has created great souls, who were after all nothing more than common, peace-loving creatures, but who by some rare fate were caught in the spotlight of history. Some of these men certainly deserve the credit due them, but others like Johnny Appleseed and Davy Crockett and yes, even George Washington, could not have possibly been as pure as we know them today.

Because of many mix ups of facts. We feel it's time something be done to straighten History out. So while we are celebrating Washington's birthday tomorrow, why not start by getting the facts on the father of our country himself.

George Washington, like most of the legendary heroes lived a godly, completely faultless boyhood, so we have been told. He never fibbed, broke windows or kept pet lizards, much less lied about chopping down a certain cherry tree with a brand new ax. This myth cannot be proven one way or the other, unfortunately, but being a kid myself, I have my doubts.

Because of his father's death, young George was raised by his older brother, Lawrence, at famous Mount Vernon. He grew to be a fine Virginian gentleman, but despite History, he, like so many other kids of his age, was tall and gangly, with huge hands and feet, which were always in his way. And what's more, he actually preferred hunting and fishing to ballrooms and dance floors,

STUDENT COUNCIL NEWS

The Junior High Student Council, as most of you probably know, is sponsoring a boy and girl of the month award for the best all around students at Nurnberg Junior High. These people will be picked on the basis of neatness, personality, scholastic attitude and citizenship. This award will be given each month from January to June. This is being done to make the Junior High students a little more conscientious. Now don't forget. If there is someone in your homeroom that you think deserves to win this student of the month award, tell your homeroom representative and he/she will nominate that particular student at our next Student Council meeting.

On St. Patrick's Day, March 15th, your Student Council is sponsoring a big dance. So don't forget--the St. Patrick's Day Dance!

MISS AND MR. SMILE

The Miss and Mr. Smile Contest that is held annually at Nurnberg High School, has finally chosen its two lucky winners, Victoria McMinn and Robert Kirkpatrick, both high school students with beautiful sets of teeth. Last year two lucky junior high people won.

Those people who entered this year and lost, keep using those tooth burshes and better luck next time!

Letters to the Editors with all kinds of suggestions are welcomed!

BOY AND GIRL OF THE MONTH

Our girl of the month for January, Susan Gray, was born in Sault Saint Marie, Michigan, the oldest of two children. Sewing, heads her list of diversions and she makes a lot of her own clothes.

When asked how she reacted when she found she was to be the Student of the Month for January, she replied, "I almost dropped my teeth!" and to what she thought of the idea as a whole, "I think it is very nice as long as they warn the person beforehand."

By the same token, our boy of the month for January, Mark Norman, was born in Richmond, Indiana, the second of four children. He has been in Europe for five years now and spent four years in the Philippines. As you can see, very little of his life was spent in the United States.

His reaction on receiving the Student of the Month Award was, "I felt sort of shook up when I went up to the Student of the Month Award. I am sure Susan deserved it but I don't know about myself." (Nonsense, Mark. You deserved it.) He feels that the Student of the Month Award is a very good idea. The Student Council should keep it up."

TEACHER'S COMMENTS

Question: What do you think is the cause of the weather?

Miss Wetzstein: "In Germany, St. Peter is the weathermaker. He must be sleeping."

Mr. Cornell: "A high pressure area which caused prevailing winds from the north and east."

Miss Youngman: "I don't know what caused this weather, but I think it should make us appreciate the time when the snow and cold are gone."

8th grader: "How do you make a bedroll?"

7th grader: "Push it!"

SEEN AND HEARD

Mr. Cornell to class: "What did you think of that man who lit a match by the gas tank?"

Doug Veith: "May he rest in pieces."

Mrs. Winchell to class: "This algebra test was made to keep you in the red marks!"

...

Miss Wetzstein: "Komm seit ruhig!"

...

Mr. Henderson: "Welcome to Hendersonia."

Miss Youngman: "You're going to the cellar class."

...

Class to Mr. Fairbanks: "May we play today?"

Mr. Fairbanks: "Since this is a democratic class, we will vote. Everyone over 21 can vote. Gee, that leaves only me, doesn't it? So, we will...."

THE WORD FROM THE PRINCIPAL

The few remaining months of this school year are very important for each and every junior high school student. Your accomplishments and failures this year will, in large part, determine the degree of success you will have next year. Therefore, each student should ask himself if he is doing his best to prepare himself for his future. The responsibility for your future is yours.

Mr. Wannebo

A SURPRISE PARTY BUT WHO WAS SURPRISED?

Mrs. Winchell, an eighth grade math teacher, left Nurnberg Junior High, Friday, the 25th January. Her adoring homeroom wanted to make her last day at Nurnberg a happy one, so they arranged a bang up farewell party in her honor. The students, under the leadership of Larry McCullough, decided to have the party the Tuesday before exams. Cakes, cookies, candies, kool-aid, records and everything else that makes a party a success, were to be brought by the members of the class. The pupils coined in their allowances so as to get Mrs. Winchell a beautiful vase full of flowers. Everything was perfect all they needed now was the teacher!

The big day finally arrived. Students came to school bundled down with all sorts of goodies which were to be stored in Mr. Ganseil's room until 2nd period when the class had Mrs. Winchell for Algebra. Every one was in good spirits until around five minutes after the homeroom period had begun, for then they were standing out in the hall without their teacher.

But, alas, they were soon informed that Mrs. Winchell was in the hospital and that a substitute was to care for the needs of the day. Naturally everyone was disappointed. But because a delay would spoil the baked goods, it was decided to have a party without the teacher.

Second period rolled around and the party was a real success, even without Mrs. Winchell. There was plenty to eat and plenty of dancing too. Two pantomimes were acted out. One by Giles Nowak, Eddie Nolde and Harry La Mont, one was entitled, "Two Professional Golfers and a Caddy", and the other by Dennis Graffin was called, "The Torpedo". Both were hilarious.

When Mrs. Winchell returned to school on Thursday she was sorely disappointed to have missed the party, but was quite happy with her card and vase of flowers. I wonder if those were tears we detected in her eyes or if she had just been peeling onions.

CLUB DOINGS

by Pam Dysinger

This year the Library Club has been active in many things. The club's field trips have consisted of going to the Special Services Library at W.O. Darby where the assistants learned more about working in a bigger and more public library. The club also visited the Amerika Haus in downtown Nurnberg.

The club has tried to plan a program for each Thursday of the week. Miss Carter, librarian of the Special Services Library at Nurnberg Post, came to speak on the career of becoming a librarian. We also gave Frau Pauthner a farewell party.

THE LITERARY EAGLE SAYS:

by Glenda Hartzog

"I was born when the Library Club of Nurnberg American High decided to publicize our library by putting out a newspaper. The club is giving me away free to all students and teachers!

National Library Week comes about in the middle of April every year. The theme for this year is "Reading is the key."

Our library has about 7000 volumes including fiction, non-fiction, and reference sections. We need your help and support to make our library an outstanding one. So remember the library not only during National Library Week and the weeks that Mr. Henderson assigns term problems (!) but all the time."

BOOKWORM OF THE YEAR !!
 By Charles Armogida

We checked the library files and discovered that the person who has checked out the most books this year is Edward W. Still, a student in Homeroom 10. Ed has filled up three library cards. We interviewed him and this is what he had to say:

"I was born in Henderson, Kentucky, April 18, 1949. I like books because you can find a lot of interesting and useful information in them. I like to read fiction books mostly, but I like other types too. I think that our library ought to be larger and have more books."

WHY DO YOU LIKE THE LIBRARY?
 By Jimmy Maltz

Ingrid Peake: "Because it's smarter than we are."

Miss Person: "Because it has books in it."

Karen Armstrong: "Because I like books and it's nice and quiet."

Diane De Yoreo: "Because there is no talking--you can get work done."

WHAT DO YOU DISLIKE ABOUT THE LIBRARY?

Catherine Gray: "Get some more books."

Bob Rozzoni: "I feel that much of the reading material is very elementary. Books on a higher level of learning should be obtained."

THE RIDDLE OF RESEARCH

by Dennis Ritter

Have you ever been stuck on a research paper where you didn't know if you were coming or going? Well, it's happened to me and I think I have found a solution. It won't work for everyone but it might help.

When you have the pleasure of choosing your own topic, you have an advantage though you might not think so. Now on this report on research I am going to use one of my own reports as an example. When choosing your topic, don't choose something you can't find information on, or something too broad. Narrow the subject. In my case I wanted to do a report on the play "Julius Caesar." But all aspects of the play; history, sources, etc. is just too vast a subject to do a good report on. Take just one aspect; if your teacher allows you to. I chose the history of the play; ie the famous performances, influences on Shakespeare, sources used by Shakespeare, and important dates.

Now before finally deciding definitely on what subject you want to write on, check references available to you. At first I wanted to write on the life of Cinna. But even though it was a good subject, there were not any references on it. So Julius Caesar it was.

While checking the references, don't do concentrated reading in them. Just skim through them and discard those that prove to be useless, or those that are biased. (unless you want points of view.)

I went to both libraries in the area and checked out many books on the subject. I went through the indexes and kept the books that seemed to have the most information. I returned the remaining. This is important because someone else might need them.

Now after you have selected your references, make out a bibliography card for each one in the style your teacher recommends. Now you start the note digging. Check each source, reading carefully for information pertaining strictly to your subject. It's wise to write your notes on 3 X 5 index cards. You should write just individual notes on separate cards; one or two sentences. Go through all your references extracting notes.

I used about 13 references in my report and got a pile of cards about $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches thick.

Then take your cards and put them into chronological or whatever kind of order the situation demands. Go over the cards for accuracy.

Now it is time to write up the report. Do it in pencil first. Be sure to use the notes from all the sources.

Check this rough draft for errors in spelling, punctuation, etc. After all errors, or all you see, have been corrected, write or type the final draft carefully. Footnote if required. Add your bibliography at the end of your report. Here's hoping you get a good grade!

REVIEWS OF NEW BOOKS by Julie Miceli

SALVAGE DIVER by Zachary Ball: The undersea world of reefs and wrecks is the setting for this story. Two young Seminoles are hired to find salvage ships. The young divers have many adventurous experiences. They observe fascinating marine life, encounter sharks, rescue a trapped diver, and find an underwater cave.

SUMMER IN VILLI-MARIE by Paule Daveluy is a story about a young girl named Rosanne and her romance with a young doctor. It is a novel of first love and unexpected joys.

CAESAR'S GALLIC WAR, by Olivia Coolidge. In this book one comes to have a great respect for Caesar, despite the barbaric battles he fought. One also comes to have a feeling for his faithful yet ruthless lieutenant, Labienus, the brave centurions, and the men of rank and file. Excitement builds as Caesar battles with the Germans, and with the Belgians.

THE TREASURY OF THE AUTOMOBILE by Ralph Stein is for anyone who has ever owned, driven, or yearned for a sublime automobile. In this book you will discover the fire chariots, early races and rallies, electric cars and steamers, the Grand Marques, Grand Prix, sport cars, links with the past, and the future. Ask for this book at the library desk as it is a reference book.

THE LIBRARY CLUB wishes to thank Mrs. Nora Speck for mimeographing our Literary Eagle; and Angela Roberts for helping to type it.

GREAT LIBRARIES by Susan Pritchard

The national library of England is the British Museum in London. Founded in 1753 through the will of Sir Hans Sloane, an English physician and naturalist, the British Museum is a national depository of science, literature, and art in London. It has over 55 miles of shelves and five million volumes and rare manuscripts, some of which date from the third century B.C. The Museum uses the Copyright Act which entitles it to receive a free copy of every book published in England.

The National Library of France, the Biblioteque

Nationale, is located in Paris. It is the oldest of the European national libraries and originated with the private libraries of the early kings of France. It has more than 4,500,000 books and over 2,000,000 pieces of music, maps, etc. It receives a free copy of every book published in France.

Holding a pre-eminent place among libraries of the world is the Vatican library in Rome. This is because of its rare and ancient manuscripts and books. It has 700,000 books, 50,000 manuscripts, and 7,500 incunabula (earliest printed books,)

Founded in Washington, D.C. on April 24, 1800, the Library of Congress is among the great libraries of the world. It is now considered to be the national library of the United States, although it was originally intended to serve only the Congress. The Library of Congress is presumed to be the world's largest library, having 270 miles of bookshelves. The librarian of Congress is appointed by the president. Two copies of all books published in the U.S. are sent free to the library

THE INADEQUACY OF OUR LIBRARY

by Juanita King

Students and teachers agree that the library is in a bad location. They feel that it should be in a more convenient and accessible spot in the school.

A junior suggested that the card catalog should have at least one selection on every reasonable topic. The library has little choice in its selection of books. Headquarters at Karlsruhe sends what books it orders or has available. The librarian may send in a list of requested books, but this does not guarantee arrival of the chosen items.

One major problem is the lack of space. At its present capacity, the library will only seat 55 people and there are 837 enrolled this year with 1000 expected next year.

Library shelves are becoming more and more crowded. There soon will be no more room.

It is difficult to have a really good library without funds. Due to the way DEG is set up, libraries receive few funds to help improve themselves for better service.
